The supply chain of ERNI products is not directly affected by the coronavirus infections.

As already communicated, ERNI manufactures its products - largely automated - mainly at its locations in Germany and Thailand. The production and manufacturing processes are therefore not affected by the effects of the virus.

Although a few components are sourced from China, they are currently not affected by the Chinese protective measures, as they do not reside from Wuhan or the surrounding area.

Even in the event that deliveries from China are being interrupted, ERNI has taken precautions to ensure that production in Europe or Thailand can be carried out, using double tool sets and sufficient capacity.

Therefore, we continue to expect NO impact on our supply chain.

We are continuing to monitor and evaluate the situation in order to be able to react accordingly.
